

Stan Sperlak Pastel Workshop Basic Supply List:

(Stan has a mini art store at his studio and barn with great prices on all supplies. At away workshops if possible he will have Ludwig pastels for sale and several sizes of Wallis/Uart paper and clips and cases, books.

X Check off as you go:

As many soft pastels as you feel comfortable traveling with. Color range is more important than size of sticks. Having them broken on the plane or car is not worth bringing so many. Try to devise a way to keep your pastels in one container so your access/set/up and travel is easier. Try to streamline your gear.

An assortment of papers mostly in 8x10/ 9x12 sizes Fabriano, Wallis, la Carte etc, a few larger is OK. Canson board, Uart sanded paper, Dakota board, pastel boards, Art Spectrum your choice/all fine.

Drawing pad or paper for notes and sketches, *note if we are painting the figure please plan on larger paper

Charcoal sticks/pencils and kneaded eraser maybe some creta color or nu pastels if you have them

A back board slightly larger than your paper white masking tape/clips/pins rubber bands

A couple extra pieces of fom-cor to place finished works in between slightly larger than your paper

A small lightweight easel is best for airline travelers (some easels available/lend at the studio)OR:

A standard field easel is great for those driving and optionally a small folding table or chair.

A knapsack or canvas bag to hold miscellaneous supplies shoes that are comfy and outdoorsy(waterproof)

Wipes old brush or two camera notepad meds water lunch sunscreen bugspray hat

Some photographs you might use of subject matter that you are at ease with and relates to the workshop.

*(My reliance on photos is limited as we will sketch and do studies from our car if the weather is bad and return with them to the easel as I prefer life or studies from life over photos, often I have a model if needed. Also if this is an indoor workshop, please bring a drop cloth for the floor)

Optional supplies:

Pre made boards/grounds, specialty papers, isopropyl alcohol, fixatives, acrylics for under-painting raw sienna is nice, as are blues, grays and reds. A painting or two to share. Chocolate for the teacher!

Note: Students spend far too much time with their supplies, carting in, setting up, breaking down etc. I ask that you consider what you are bringing, how important it all is, how it relates to the simple list above and how much work it is to move and open up. Get a bigger bag, use a rolling suitcase or backpack. Leaving pastels in 5 different manufacturers boxes is a recipe for organizational distress. You will be more worried about your supplies than creating art. Start with a box that you make up of a range of colors you know you use and enjoy. In general, these are outdoor workshops and even indoors it will be from life and about speed and spontaneity and exploration. The student isn't expected to produce fully resolved studio works. The exercises we do are meant to train you for those masterpieces when you continue painting on your own. If you do find one working well, then by all means let's finish it, but keep your mind open to learning.
